Get outside in 2018 and what a better way to do it than at the Environmental Nature Center!

Here's a countdown of the Top 5 programs the ENC is offering this month:

5. Wolves, Coyotes and Wildlife on Jan. 11 at 6 p.m. Take a close look at the differences and similarities between wolf and coyote biology, behavior, social structure, historical and current ranges and ecosystem roles.

4. Little Naturalists: Snow Friends on Jan. 10 at 9:30 a.m. They'll read Snow Friends by Christina Butler and Tina Macnaughton, and you will get to meet some of their Snow Friends, then make your own snow friends out of snow play dough!

3. Mystery Treks Hiking Club, Jan. 28 at 3 p.m. Each month you'll meet at the ENC for a mini-seminar on a different hiking topic. Then you'll venture out to a fantastic hiking spot in OC and enjoy nature together.

2. Primitive Skills Society, Jan. 13 at 4:30 p.m. Each month you can learn and work on different primitive skills, with a light meal cooked over the campfire. You'll meet people who are also into cool stuff like: building primitive shelters, fire making and tracking.

1. Reading in the Redwoods, Jan. 28 at 9:30 a.m. ENC Executive Director Bo Glover will read Raccoon Moon, a book about his favorite animal. Afterward children and their adults will hike the trails in search of Rocky the Raccoon, make their own animal tracks, and play match the skulls & skins.
